Monroe Moxness Berg Adds New Litigation Team

MINNEAPOLIS – March 4, 2011 – Minneapolis law firm Monroe Moxness Berg, formerly Krass Monroe, today announced the addition of new litigation counsel. The addition of the new team strengthens the firm's ability to provide experienced litigation services to clients and compliments Monroe Moxness Berg's strong business practice.

The new Monroe Moxness Berg litigation team includes veterans, Gerald Duffy and Kristin Kingsbury, as well as Matt Duffy, formerly with Minneapolis-based Siegel Brill Greupner Duffy & Foster P.A. law firm. Under Gerald Duffy's leadership as chair of the Monroe Moxness Berg Litigation practice group, the firm will offer two new areas of practice – Land Use and Construction Law.

According to Mark Moxness, president at Monroe Moxness Berg, the addition of the new litigation team is the right fit for the company's unique model of being more than a law firm. Monroe Moxness Berg provides legal, financial and tax services that fosters creative solutions for clients' needs.

"The litigation team aligns well with our current services, while allowing us to offer our clients more services and complex litigation experience," Moxness said. "The synergy will enable us to provide broader services to existing clients and position ourselves to better serve the needs of prospective clients."

Gerald Duffy agrees, "Monroe Moxness Berg's model and platform for legal services is a great fit for the litigation team and for our clients. Our litigation clients now have access to a breadth of corporate support through a firm that has great energy and a vision for the future."

Gerald Duffy has more than 40 years of litigation experience ranging from simple disputes to the most complex. He practices in the areas of business, land use and construction law and litigation. Gerald Duffy works extensively with private interests, landowners and developers on all aspects of real estate matters, including land use, condemnation/inverse condemnation, zoning, permitting, platting, environmental reviews and Environmental Impact Statements. He earned a B.A. from the University of Minnesota and his Juris Doctorate from the University of Minnesota School of Law.

Kingsbury also joins the Monroe Moxness Berg litigation team. She practices in the areas of business, construction, employment, land use law and litigation. She earned her B.A., magna cum laude, from St. Olaf College and her Juris Doctorate, cum laude, from William Mitchell College of Law.

Matt Duffy focuses on land use and commercial litigation. He obtained a B.A. from the University of St. Thomas and his Juris Doctorate from William Mitchell College of Law.
